++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Heavy showers and thunderstorms slowly decaying. Drier for most tomorrow.

This Evening and Tonight:
Heavy showers and thunderstorms will gradually fade during the evening and overnight leaving clear spells. A few mist and fog patches are then possible towards dawn.

Tuesday:
A much better day than of late with many areas dry with sunny spells and feeling warmer. Still a few showers about for some though, mainly over parts of Scotland.

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Outbreaks of rain spreading eastwards Wednesday and Thursday, heavy in the north. Dry to southeast of this, showers to northwest. Showers in the north Friday, dry in the south.
